

SUMMER SCHOOL

A detailed architectural rendering of the Belval development in Luxembourg. The scene is set at dusk or dawn, with a large, modern building featuring a grid-like facade and several large, circular, illuminated skylights. The building is reflected in a body of water in the foreground, which is filled with reeds and other aquatic plants. The overall atmosphere is serene and modern.

ABOUT EUROPAST

In close collaboration with the Leibniz Centre for Contemporary History (ZZF) Potsdam, the Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology (Lund University), and the Centre for Contemporary and Digital History (C²DH, University of Luxembourg), the Institute of International Relations and Political Science, Vilnius University, is leading a three-year Horizon Twinning project "Facing the Past. Public History for a Stronger Europe". The project aims to explore the theory and practice of engaging citizens in the co-production and communication of the past in the digital age.

Through an effective combination of training, networking, research, and communication activities, the project will establish an interdisciplinary research network, which will contribute to the democratization of historical practices through inclusion, empowerment, and engagement of citizens in critical debates about the past.

The EUROPAST training programme, led by the C²DH, envisions the organization of three Summer Schools.

The second Summer School, focusing on digital tools and public history, will take place at the University of Luxembourg, Maison des Sciences Humaines Building (MSH), Centre for Contemporary and Digital History.

All members associated with one of the four partners and external candidates can apply.

Accommodation for all participants will be provided.

BELVAL SUMMER SCHOOL

01-04 July 2024

The Use of Digital Tools and Methods in the Creation, Production, and Analysis of Public History Narratives

The Europast Summer Schools are designed to offer theoretical and methodological training, whilst placing a strong emphasis on supporting the development of early-career researchers in their chosen fields, promoting research integrity, conduct, and communication.

The 2024 Summer School will take place in Luxembourg at the Centre for Contemporary and Digital History. It aims to gather scholars interested in the contribution of digital tools and methods to the creation, production, and analysis of public historical narratives. Across the four days of training we will host and discuss topics including practices of co-production, curation, analysis and archiving.

The Summer School will run from the 01 to the 04 of July 2024, with a daily timetable divided into three modules:

- ▶ Conversations keynote presentations followed by a discussion
- ▶ Workshops History and Video Games; Podcasting; Tropy application for data management; Crowdsourcing
- ▶ Presentations 10-minute lightning talks by ECRs on their work and one specific point they would like to discuss further (methodology, audience, collaboration, etc.)

To apply for the Summer school, please email a biography written in the third person (maximum 400-500 characters, spaces included) and a cover letter in which you explain how you engage with digital tools and methods in the creation and analysis of public history narratives (maximum 250 words).

Please apply before Friday, 16 February by sending the above documents to Rhianne Morgan: rhianne.morgan@uni.lu
