as well as on the websites of the participating research institutions.

The Leibniz Research Network Central and Eastern Europe has existed since 2015. It brings together more than twenty of the Leibniz Association's institutes whose multidisciplinary work either focuses on Central and Eastern Europe or deals with the region in projects.

SCIENCE AT RISK Emergency Office is a project founded by the Academic Network Eastern Europe, akno e.V., that provides support to academics and students that have been affected by the war in Ukraine or by political repression in Belarus and Russia.
